Experiential Learning Spotlight

Your pathway to Internships and Co-ops at UCF! Office of Experiential Learning (OEL) in Undergraduate Studies is a partnership between students, OEL faculty, and the community which promotes development of student professional, personal, and academic skills in an applied learning environment. There are three programs that are available through OEL: Cooperative Education (Co-op), Internships, and Service-Learning. These experiences are in major-related, professional settings and are structured for learning, including supervision, learning objectives, reflection, and evaluation toward the assessment of student learning outcomes. OEL is a university-wide academic program and students in any major can qualify, as long as they are full-time, degree-seeking students with min. 20 completed credits and min. 2.5 GPA. Internships and Co-ops are academic courses which can be taken for zero, one, two, or three credits, and they may also fulfill departmental or general elective credit requirements toward student’s degree.

We have two Internship Fairs in the spring and fall semesters with over 45 companies and organizations and we have placed students with partners such as: NASA, Disney World, Google, Facebook, Siemens, and many more from a variety of industries. Please save the date for the next:

Spring 2015 Internship Fair – Wednesday, February 11, 2015 at the Student Union Pegasus Ballroom

OEL also offers International Internships during summer that reflect the global nature of education. Benefits of OEL to students include enhanced education, goal clarification, skill development, and an increased likelihood of obtaining major-related employment upon graduation: 80% for co-ops and 50% for interns as opposed to 30% for students with no major-related experience.

All of our services are free for students and provide great opportunities for experience. For more information about OEL, please visit our website at explearning.ucf.edu and visit us on the 3rd Floor of CSEL Building at Memory Mall!

Undeclared? Be Prepared.

UCF’s undeclared policy states that a student must declare a major before they reach 45 or more semester credit hours. If you have not declared a major by this time, you will be placed on an Undeclared Hold. This means you must visit an SSYC advisor to begin exploring different options for a major of study.

If you currently have an undeclared hold, or if you are still undecided, feel free to visit one of our advisors to start exploring which major is right for you!
